ADDITIONAL paid drills for officers and men of the Air Force Reserve and Air National Guard are in prospect for next year.

Maj. Gen. William E. Hall, USAF, speaking at the Air Force Association convention here, said the proposal is "under study" in the Defense Department and will be pressed by the Air Force "as an important element of the 1957 budget." The Air Force Assistant Chief of Staff for Reserve Forces said the AF currently doesn't have authority to provide "sufficient paid drills to assure what we be-

President OKs Reserve Law But Expresses "Concern"; Thousands Escape Compulsion

A new plan to further strengthen the Reserve Forces will go to Congress early next year.

President Eisenhower made the disclosure on 9 Aug. when he signed the Reserve Forces Act. He said he has instructed Defense Secretary Wilson to draft legislation to correct "deficiencies" in the new law.

Still needed, he said, are two steps provided by the original plan: (1) authority to fill up the ranks of the National Guard with six-month trainees, and (2) authority to draft men into the six-months' Reserve training program.

Men now on active duty are little affected by the new measure except where

Congressman Short Advocates Health Insurance Plan For Military Dependents

A group-health insurance program for dependents of military personnel is advocated by Representative Dewey Short (R-Mo), ranking Republican on the House Armed Services Committee.

In an address before the Postgraduate Medical Assembly of South Texas, Congressman Short said he knows of nothing "that would more adversely affect the morale of our Armed Forces than to eliminate" medical care for dependents.

Rep. Short

It is "incumbent" upon the Congress, he declared, "to adopt some type of group-health insurance" for Servicemen and women.

An insurance feature is included, as one of three options, in the new Dependent Medical Care bill which reached the Capitol shortly before Congress adjourned (THE JOURNAL, 6 Aug.).

Such a plan, Congressman Short said, will assure dependents of medical care by civilian physicians "even though the dependent is separated from the service member and in an area where no service facilities are available."

The number of persons entitled to medical care from military doctors is large, Representative Short said, but statistics show that the entitlement "is not being abused." He noted that "if all medical care were abolished for all per-

37 NEW SERVICE LAWS—

President Eisenhower has signed the retirement tax-credit law, the Navy 20-year retirement law and 16 other measures affecting military men and women and their dependents, making a total of 37 new Service laws so far this year (see complete tabulation on page 1479).

1955 Marine Board More Than Doubles No. of Officers Picked To Don Eagles

The 1955 Marine Corps colonel selection board named more than twice as many Regular officers as were picked last year. Names of those selected were published in last week's issue of THE JOURNAL.

Although the promotion zone was more than double last year's, the selection ratio jumped five per cent. In a zone of 74, which extended from Lt. Col. Robert A. Harvey, USMC, through Lt. Col. Randolph S. D. Lockwood, USMC, 49 officers were named to wear eagles—a selection rate of 66 per cent. The selection percentage last year was 61.

This year, however, the board also picked up four officers from above the zone.

Of the 53 chosen for increased rank, five are Supply Officers and 19 are Naval Aviators. The board named 17 of 22 NA's within the zone and two from above the zone.

DoD Plans Close-Up Of 14 Service-Operated Plants; Congressional Reaction Expected

It looks as though the Defense Department and Congress will lock horns over the issue of shutting down commercial and industrial type activities now being operated at Army, Navy and Air Force installations.

The DoD, stating that it is continuing its present program of reviewing for possible discontinuance the operation of such Government-operated plants, has submitted to Congress a list of 14 plants which it plans to close down "in the near future." The list includes four coffee roasting plants, two paint manufacturing facilities, one ropewalk, one bakery, one dry cleaning plant, and five cobbler shops.

In making the announcement, DoD said it had submitted the list to the Appropriations Committee of the Senate and the House as a result of passage of Section 638 of the Defense Department Appropriation Act of '56. Section 638, which President Eisenhower labeled "unconstitutional" when he signed the '56 Appropriation Act, requires that a 90-day notification be submitted to Congress before any proposed disestablishment is effected.

In a special message to Congress on 13 July, the President declared that Section 638 was an invasion of executive powers and that he intended to treat it as invalid.

permissive authority is granted the Defense Secretary to establish new early discharge regulations, and to set up a one-year Ready Reserve training plan for those leaving the Service. As THE JOURNAL went to press the Pentagon said it has not yet decided whether to make use of this authority.

The first of these two features of the law authorizes the Pentagon to give early discharges to as many as 300,000 men upon their completion of 12 months' active duty, provided they agree to serve in the Ready Reserve for a period, which when added to their active duty time, totals four years.

The second feature permits the Defense Department to accept enlistments in the Ready Reserve for a period of one year from men who are released from active duty after 9 Aug. Those who enlist in the Ready Reserve under this program will be required to train for one year, after which they will be relieved of further obligation to serve in the Ready Reserve.

Unless the Pentagon takes steps to put these two features of the law into operation, men now on active duty will not be affected by the new law. Their present 8-year obligation will remain the same. The compulsory features of the new law, which make training in the Ready Reserve mandatory for those entering the Service after 9 Aug., do not apply to those already in uniform.

Under the terms of the new Act, the ceiling on the Ready Reserve is boosted from 1.5 million to 2.9 million men.

The training requirement for those who enter the Ready Reserve after 9 Aug., consists of not less than 48 scheduled drills or training periods and not more than 17 days of active duty for training each year; or they may participate in 30 days of active duty for training annually.

Failure to participate satisfactorily in training programs carries the penalty of being ordered to active duty for 45 additional days of training, or of being reported to the local draft board for induction.

Reserve Training

Three special programs are provided for enlistment in the Reserves.

The first program applies to men who are qualified for active duty but have not yet been ordered to report for induction. They may enlist in a reserve component for a total period of six years provided they agree to go on active duty for two years within this period of time. They are required to serve satisfactorily in the Ready Reserve for a period, which when added to their active duty, will total five years. They are then transferred to the Standby Reserve for the remainder of their obligation.

The second program provides, for the next four years, annual quotas of 250,000 young men who may enlist in the Reserves (other than the National Guard) for a period of eight years. This program is limited to those under 18½ who have not been ordered to report for induction. They must agree to perform an initial period of active duty of not less than three nor more than six months, and thereafter to continue their reserve training in a satisfactory manner.

High school students who enlist may be deferred from their active duty for training until they graduate, cease to make satisfactory grades, or become 20 years of age—whichever is first.

Men in this program will receive $50 monthly while training for active duty, as well as certain other benefits. The National Security Training Commission is charged with the responsibility of advising the President and the Defense Secretary with regard to the welfare of the men in this program, and are required to make an annual report to the Congress.

The third program permits for the other Reserve components a direct enlistment program identical to that which has been in effect in the National Guard since 1948. Men who are not yet 18½ may enlist in such units and be deferred from training and service under the new law until they are 28, provided they participate satisfactorily in reserve training.

National Guard

An inducement for active duty for training is provided for the National Guard. Any member of a NG unit who has completed eight years of satisfactory service and who has also been on active duty for training for not less than three consecutive months, cannot be drafted unless Congress declares a national emergency, or there is a declaration of war.

Screening

The law provides a system of continuous screening of members of the Ready Reserve to ensure a constant state of readiness. Those who have participated in combat are to be screened out of the Ready Reserve into the Standby Reserve. Those who have critical civilian skills will not be kept in the Ready Reserve in excess of military requirements. Those whose mobilization would result in extreme personal or community hardship may also be screened into the Standby Reserve.

ROTC Graduates

Qualified ROTC graduates are guaranteed commissions under the new law. If the services of an ROTC graduate are not required on active duty at the time he receives his commission, he will be ordered to active duty for training for six months, to train in the grade in which he was commissioned. At the end of this training, he will be assigned to a Reserve unit until the eighth anniversary of his commissioning. As long as he performs satisfactorily in Reserve training, he will be deferred from the draft. If he fails to perform satisfactorily, his commission may be revoked.

President's Statement

President Eisenhower expressed concern this week about the program provided in the new Reserve Forces Act, which he signed on 9 Aug. Here is what the President said:

I have today approved the Reserve Forces Act of 1955. Although the bill falls short of the program which I sent to the Congress by special message on Jan. 13, 1955, and which the Department of Defense urged the Congress to adopt, nevertheless the bill does contain provisions that will definitely strengthen the Reserve structure.

1. It provides a statutory means of assuring that our Federal Reserves will be composed of prior-trained men on a planned basis.

2. It will permit an increase in the Ready Reserve manpower ceiling from 1,500,000 to 2,900,000.

3. It clearly establishes the obligation to participate in Reserve training and provides for effective and reasonable enforcement measures to achieve this participation.

4. It authorizes the President to order up one million Ready Reservists in an emergency proclaimed by him.

I am, however, concerned by the failure of the bill to afford the same guarantees of prior training for the National Guard as it has done for the Reserves. The bill is also deficient in failing to grant authority to induct into the Reserve if sufficient numbers to meet military requirements are not obtained voluntarily.

The securing of sufficient numbers in the Reserve on a voluntary basis undoubtedly will be hampered by the unwarranted disparity under the bill between the $78 per month offered to members of the National Guard who volunteered to undergo initial active duty for training, and the $50 per month provided for members of the Reserve who undergo identical, initial training.

In my special message of Jan. 13 and in recommendations of the Department of Defense, it was urged that provisions be included to insure a hard core of prior-service personnel to the National Guard. Not only did the Congress fail to include such provisions, but it also excluded the National Guard from the provisions for interim incentives to secure participation of prior service personnel in the various Reserve training programs.

I have serious doubt that in the absence of further statutory authority, the National Guard can fully attain its planned size, and the standards of military proficiency and readiness, that are essential in our mobilization planning. I am, therefore, instructing the Secretary of Defense and the Joint Chiefs of Staff to conduct a continuing review of National Guard programs and standards to determine whether they meet the imperative requirements of our first line defenses.

The bill reduces the present eight-year military obligation to six years. The effect of this will not manifest itself to any degree in the immediate future. Such reduction is, however, a matter that merits careful study to determine whether, at some future period, it will be necessary to request restoration of the eight-year obligation.

Taking under consideration all factors and the essential need to build strong reserves, I am instructing the Secretary of Defense to take immediate and effective action to utilize the means that the bill provides to augment and strengthen the Reserve forces throughout the country and to prepare for presentation for the next session of the Congress amendment necessary to correct the deficiencies in this legislation.

Army Surgeons Asked "Maximum Effort" To Ease Family MedCare Hardships

Army surgeons have been called upon to contribute their "maximum efforts" to minimize the impact of the medical officer shortage on military personnel and their dependents.

The Army took this action after an earlier communication to the field had put all Service families on notice that curtailed family care was essential in order to maintain high medical standards.

Col. Douglas B. Kendrick, MC, USA, Executive Officer in the Office of the Surgeon General, has advised Army medical personnel:

"The Surgeon General desires that physicians, dentists and all ancillary medical treatment personnel contribute their maximum efforts to minimize the impact of this shortage upon personnel of the Armed Forces and their dependents.

"Especially important is the elimination of wasted time, whether caused by inept planning, appointment systems that fail to make full use of available time or abuse of rest periods."

"The reduction of any benefit, and especially one so important as medical care, invariably provokes complaints from the field. The highest quality of leadership and resourcefulness in the utilization of physicians and dentists will be required of commanders of Army medical treatment facilities to insure that there is no factual basis for such complaints which emanate from the failure to fully utilize physicians and dentists."

lieve to be a satisfactory degree of combat capability." He added that flight crews have to put in many hours of non-paid drills to maintain their efficiency.

The plan now under study would provide 36 additional paid drills for pilots and flying personnel of Guard and Reserve units. It also calls for 48 paid drills for mobilization assignees in flying status and 24 for non-flying assignees.

Reviewing the progress of the AF Reserve program, General Hall stated that selective assignment of all officers to fill mobilization requirements will be in motion on 1 January. Here are the highlights of his address:

There has been a "satisfying improvement" in the state of the AF Reserve Forces during the last 12 months, and they are now closer to the target of combat capability than ever before.

PAID TRAINING ASSIGNMENTS have increased. From 1 July '54 to 30 June '55, these assignments more than doubled in the AFR. Officer paid training assignment strength increased 147 per cent (90 per cent of which was in squadrons giving specialized training). Airman strength increased by 90 per cent, with a large majority enlisting in combat wings.

During the same period, the ANG increased in strength by 23 per cent, coming within two per cent of the revised program goal. The strength of the Guard as of 30 June '55 was 61,306, including 6,698 officers and 54,608 airmen.

As a result of the option letters which went out to Reserve officers last Spring inviting them to "fish, cut bait, or go ashore," more than 33,000 have chosen assignments to an active program. About half that number resigned and 2,148 others elected retirement. This result will increase combat capability and open the way for promotion and participation for sonnel now entitled to medical care from the armed services other than armed services personnel and their dependents, we would only be able to eliminate about 40 of the 10,000 physicians now serving on active duty with the armed services and the Public Health Service.

"And if we abolished all dependent medical care in the United States, we would only eliminate an additional 581 doctors from the armed services and the Public Health Service."

Congressman Short advocated a "substantial increase in the number of doctors" as the "ultimate solution to the whole problem of supplying doctors for our Armed Forces and also for the civilian economy."

He said that the doctor-draft cannot be continued indefinitely, and the Services must find some other procurement method for doctors. At the same time, he noted, the military cannot depend entirely upon young men who have just completed their internships because specialists and experienced physicians are needed by the Armed Services "just as much as any other group of people."

Mr. Short answered critics who say the ratio of military physicians to armed services personnel is too high. "All the time of a doctor in the Armed Forces is not confined to the treatment of people who are ill," he noted. "Perhaps some doctors spend most of their time treating patients but when that doctor is serving in that capacity another doctor is studying a supply problem or a study involving the results of underwater demolition, or the proper way to treat victims of nuclear warfare."

The Congressman declared, "It is not quite fair to our Armed Services to compare the ratio of physicians to the civilian population and then conclude that the ratio in our Armed Services should more nearly approach that ratio. The problem in our Armed Forces is to keep our people healthy and not wait to treat them after they are sick."

those who are "trained, capable and in earnest."

THE SELECTIVE ASSIGNMENT of airmen with specific skills will be applied to ANGUS units on a priority basis equal to that of AFR units. CAC has been directed to proceed immediately with a plan to effect the assignment of obligated airmen to fill ANG mobilization requirements.

About 65,000 officers have been considered for promotion under the new Reserve Officer Personnel Act and some 53,000 were selected. Those named for promotion include approximately 30,000 who are on inactive duty and 23,000 on active duty. About 10,000 who were deferred will be considered on the next cycle.

THERE ARE NOW 51 COMBAT WINGS in the AFR and ANG, including fighter interceptor, troop carrier, fighter bomber, tactical reconnaissance, tactical bombardment, radar calibration, and air resupply units. Present plans call for the ANG to consist of 23 fighter interceptor, two tactical bomber, and two tactical reconnaissance wings, all to be manned at war strength "as quickly as practicable."

ANG and AFR units are scheduled to have 154 flying locations by the end of fiscal '58, and the practicality of extend-

Veteran of Early Air Arm Retires with 39 Yrs.

After having served in various branches of the service for more than 39 years, Col. Charles D. Bourcier, USAFR, has retired.

Colonel Bourcier enlisted in June of 1916 as a private in the Cavalry, and was commissioned a Lieutenant of Infantry in November of 1917. In addition to Mexico, he has served in World War I and II and the Korean incident, including service as an officer with French, Belgian and Portuguese armies.

He is one of the last two commissioned officers who served in the famous First Infantry Division in WWI who was still on active duty until today.

He also has the unique distinction of having flown in aircraft in 1916 when the Air Force was an infant organization with a few planes flown by civilian contract fliers and three or four Army pilots. It is believed that he is one of the last of those early fliers who piloted heavier than air machines of the early days of flying, when the air arm was a unit of the Signal Corps.

Colonel and Mrs. Bourcier will make their home at Keith Hill, Grafton, Mass. They have one daughter, Mrs. Vernon P. Mathis of Syracuse, N. Y. and a brand new grandchild, Mark David Mathis, a future Air Force Academy cadet.

ing the "detached squadron" idea to some non-flying organizations is currently under study.

The Reserve Forces are being equipped with modern aircraft as rapidly as possible without adversely affecting the active establishment build-up to 137 wings. They now have "appreciable numbers" of F-84s, F-86s, F-94s, F-89s and the older F-80s. They also are receiving C-119s and T-33s. All propeller-driven fighter planes have been eliminated from the Reserve wings and the ANG will continue to phase out piston engine fighters as fast as jets become available.

A total of 19 navigator training squadrons have been organized. All have instructors in place, supplies, aircraft and personnel. ATC is furnishing active duty training for these officers at James Connally AFB, with 20 hours of flying training for each navigator in T-29 aircraft. Some 516 will complete the training before the end of the summer.

New RCA Radar "Weather Eye" Sees Through Storms

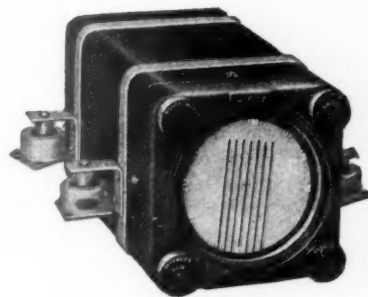

In our time, man has won round after round in the century-old contest against the elements. For thousands of years, caravan leaders, ship captains, and now airplane pilots—men responsible for the safe transport of travelers and merchandise—have studied the skies. What unseen far-distant dangers lurked there? Fog? Storm? Hurricane?

The most recent scientific victory is something new in Radar—an electronic "Weather Eye" developed by RCA.

In airplanes, this supersensitive instrument peers miles ahead. It gives advance warning of weather disturbances. The signals on its radar screen point the way to a safe course around storm areas, or even through them.

The leadership in electronic research that made the "Weather Eye" possible is inherent in all RCA products and services. And at the David Sarnoff Research Center of RCA, Princeton, N. J., scientists are continually at work to extend the frontiers of "Electronics for Living"—electronics that make your life easier, safer, happier.

New RCA Weather Mapping Radar weighs under 125 pounds, takes little space in a plane.

Admiral Carney Hauls Down His Flag As CNO

Admiral Robert B. Carney, USN, Chief of Naval Operations, hauls down his flag aboard the USS Ticonderoga at Norfolk, Va., on 17 Aug.

At the same time, RADM. Arleigh A. Burke, USN, will be sworn in to fill the vacated post.

The ceremony will mark the first time since the Office of CNO was created in 1915 that the top-ranking Naval officer assumes command of the operating forces of the Navy aboard a ship of the fleet.

The Navy says the aircraft carrier was picked for the full-dress ceremony to permit appropriate military honors for Admiral Carney and Admiral Burke and to point up the close relationship of the CNO and the operating forces of the Navy.

Admiral Carney ends a distinguished career of 39 years which began with his graduation from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1916.

Navy Develops Lensless Goggles and Cold Weather Clothing; To Get Antarctic Test

Lensless goggles and cold weather clothing with plastic foam lining developed by the Navy for use in extremely low temperatures will be tested this Fall in the Antarctic as part of Operation Deepfreeze.

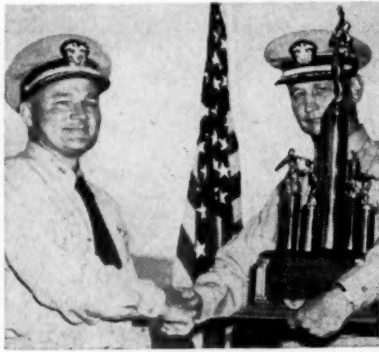

The wind-resistant goggles, the Navy explained, are an outgrowth of the Eskimo practice of cutting star-shaped slits in goggles carved from whalebone, combined with some recent experiences of the Canadians in testing standard goggles with large holes cut in the lenses.

The lenses of conventional goggles become rapidly fogged by condensation of moisture evaporated from the eyes at low temperatures. In the Navy's experimental type, the lenses are omitted and a transparent plastic kidney-shaped cylinder is fitted to a foam rubber frame. The open end cylinder projects directly forward to shield the eyes; stagnant air within the cylinder deflects the wind.

The cold weather clothing, designed to keep a man afloat indefinitely, is made of a waterproof outer fabric and interlined with a non-wettable perforated plastic foam—a chemical compound called polyvinylchloride.

Zippered slits across the chest and thighs are designed to permit evaporation of body moisture when the wearer is doing heavy work.

A Marine Corps selection board to name active duty majors for advancement to lieutenant colonel is slated to convene on 1 Sept.

All majors, other than those designated for limited duty, who will have completed four years' service in grade as of 30 June 56, will be considered. The tentative promotion zone for unrestricted officers ends with Maj. Wendell O. Livesay, USMC, No. 614 on the 1 Jan. 54 Combined Lineal List. The zone of promotion for LDO's includes Maj. Cletus K. Gibson, USMC, lineal position 680.

A review of the official Registers reveals that 90 per cent of the SDO's in the '54 and '55 zones were named for promotion. This year, five out of six were chosen; last year, four out of four were named.

All the selectees have dates of rank as lieutenant colonels from 1947, with the exception of 10 whose dates of rank are from 1944, and the senior officer picked from above the zone who has a 1942 date of rank.

Prepare Beaufort ALF Runway To Handle Jets

A 3,000-foot extension to an old 5,000-foot runway has been completed at Cherry Point's newest Auxiliary Landing Field at Beaufort, S. C.

The addition makes the field capable of handling jets and heavy planes. Concrete buffers at the ends of the strip have been installed to withstand the blasts of jet burners.

The extension of the runway is only one improvement called for under existing improvement contracts. Other major items are rehabilitation of 13 buildings, construction of eight EM barracks, a subsistence building, a BOQ, a class C maintenance hangar, four squadron hangars, a number of ordnance structures, and 115,000 square yards of parking apron.

It is expected that by next Spring construction at the Beaufort field will be advanced enough to permit accommodation of a wing. At present, the field is designated an Auxiliary Landing Field (a non-commissioned activity). It is reported, however, that expectations point to the redesignation of the field as an Auxiliary Air Field during this fiscal year. According to a Cherry Point Public Works spokesman, the field will eventually become a full-fledged Air Station.

The landing field is commanded by Col. Frank M. June, USMC.

SAC Studies Burden On Men "Eating Out"

Finance officials of the Strategic Air Command are considering proposals to increase the subsistence for airmen who have to purchase meals at commercial establishments because of lack of government messing facilities.

The numbered air forces have been requested to make a survey of the number of airmen assigned to their areas without access to government mess halls, and the number of meals they purchase at restaurants.

Airmen who are permitted to mess separately, and who receive a subsistence allowance of $1.10 a day, would, under the proposed increase, be eligible for an additional allowance when these two conditions prevail. The additional allowance under the proposed increase would amount to 86 cents a day.

Airmen assigned to duties where government mess facilities are available would not be eligible for the increase, and the increased rate would apply only for meals during duty hours.

AMC And Airline Talk Over Flight Feeding

Representatives of the Air Materiel Command, Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, and American Airlines have joined forces to exchange ideas on flight feeding.

The Air Force hopes to offer more eye appeal to its flight menu and gain new methods for serving the food, according to Lieutenant Colonel John Oroszi, Chief of the Food Services Branch.

Representatives of the airlines observed the Air Force flight feeding program and studied methods used by Air Materiel Command. Prepared flight meals were sampled and a study of the Wright-Patterson AFB flight feeding kitchen made.

In addition, the representatives visited the Wright Air Development Command Aero Medical Laboratory to review current standard flight feeding equipment.

AF Will Present 200 Planes In 75-Minute Aerial Display At National Aircraft Show

More than 200 Air Force planes will participate in the National Aircraft Show at the Philadelphia International Airport, 3-5 Sept.

The craft will be presented in a 75-minute AF aerial demonstration which includes a fly-over and release at low level of an F-84F Republic Thunderstreak from the underbelly of a Convair B-36 intercontinental bomber.

Two new aircraft, the supersonic McDonnell F-101 Voodoo and the new turbo-prop cargo-carrier Lockheed C-130 Hercules, will make their first public appearance at the show.

In addition to the aerial program, the AF will participate in four special events during the three-day Show: the Bendix Cross Country Speed Dash on 3 Sept.; the Allison Trophy Event and the General Electric Trophy Event on 4 Sept., and the Thompson Trophy Event on 5 Sept.

Twenty-two AF aircraft and models of three others will be on ground exhibit.

An Air Force spokesman said the AF aerial show has been designed to permit aircraft "as nearly as possible" to demonstrate their actual missions. Fighter planes will fly intercept missions, while others will provide cover for supply-dropping aerial freighters and for bomber flights.

The Thunderbirds, official AF jet flying team, will give a daily 17-minute exhibition of close-order acrobatics.

The Martin B-57 Canberra, one of the newest aircraft in the USAF, will be featured in a mock low-level bombing attack over the Airport.

Also on the program is an in-flight refueling mission, to be demonstrated by a Boeing KC-97 Stratotanker and a Boeing B-47 Stratojet bomber.

Approximately 23 aerial events are included in the AF portion of the three-day Show.

Overseas Housing. The recent contract between the United States and a French investment firm for the construction of 2,516 family housing units for the Army and Air Force in France means a further easing of a most deplorable situation in that country. With other housing already built or under way it means that the total in France will be brought to 4,710 units.

This, however, still falls far short of the needs, while virtually nothing has yet been done to help American forces stationed in the United Kingdom and in North Africa. Few who have not seen the substandard conditions under which our fighting services and their families have to live in these countries can appreciate their plight (THE JOURNAL, 6 Nov. '54 and 1 Jan. '55).

Congress has held back on money for such housing with the result that Germany (where it has been built with money and labor furnished by the German government) is virtually the only place where housing approaches the needs. The modified Wherry Act for France and England permitted contracts with local firms guaranteeing 95 per cent occupancy. Until now this guarantee has extended for only five years, but the new contract extends the guarantee for seven years, which doubtless was the factor that attracted more French capital. However, in England this rental guarantee means little inasmuch as British tax laws on rental incomes are very high. Negotiations have been underway there to build quarters on a sale basis, mortgage payments being made in lieu of rental, but thus far nothing concrete has been made public.

Certainly, Congress either should liberalize the conditions for private builders abroad so that more quarters may be provided, or it should appropriate directly for the construction of living quarters for its families there.

The X-1A Paid Off. Despite the fact that the research aircraft X-1A was totally destroyed this week when its mother plane was forced to drop it after an explosion in the air, that venerable vehicle has long since paid for itself in the fund of knowledge it has opened up in the field of high speed flight.

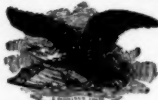

Fortunately, due largely to the quick thinking and skill of NACA's Chief Test Pilot, Joseph A. Walker and the crew of the mother B-29, there was no loss of life and no serious injuries. The explosion occurred while Walker was in the cockpit and just 70 seconds before the time the plane was to be released from the B-29 and make its run. Walker had to open the canopy and subject himself to the hazards of decompression. But he got safely into the B-29. This happened at 30,000 feet.

The B-29 descended to 6,000 feet and then released the X-1A to plunge to the desert below.

The X-1A grew out of the program of research aircraft decided upon in 1944. The first of the series were the Bell X-1, sponsored by the Air Force, and the Douglas D-558-1, sponsored by the Navy. Now at least eight different research airplanes have been built, plus a number of duplicates. Through them and the skilled pilots and research scientists at the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics' High Speed Flight Station at Edwards AFB, Calif., data on sonic and supersonic flight has been obtained in actual flight which could not have been gotten in any other way. This has been passed on to the Air Force, the Navy, and the aircraft manufacturers and has contributed enormously to the defense of the United States and the design of our future aircraft, both military and commercial.

NACA's High Speed Flight Station is now engaged in an intensive study of aerial heating in supersonic flight (THE JOURNAL, 9 July '55).

While the loss of the X-1A will be felt, the Station still has a number of other research aircraft working on the problem. One of these, the X-1B, has been at NACA's Langley Aeronautical Laboratory preparing for further, and more intensive testing of aerial heating. By the end of the year its fleet of research aircraft will be augmented by the new X-2, the first to be designed and built specifically for an assault on the thermal barrier.

Meanwhile, the X-1A, like the rest of NACA's stable of research vehicles, has paid for itself many times over.

The Ratio of Doctors. Rep. Dewey Short (R. Mo.), former chairman and now ranking minority member of the House Armed Services Committee, touched on a significant point in his recent address to the Postgraduate Medical Assembly of South Texas when he declared that it is not fair to compare the ratio of medical officers to the strength of the armed forces with the ratio of physicians to the total civilian population.

The ratio used in the military services (and turned against them by their critics) is based on the total number of commissioned officers in the Medical Corps as against the actual active military strength. It does not take into consideration the fact that many of the medical officers are engaged in administrative work, are either teachers or students at military or civilian schools, are engaged in public health work, preventive medicine, or research, or working out the problems of medical logistics, are personnel officers, on staffs, or engaged in one or the other of the myriad military duties that are required to make a well rounded medical service.

The services of those officers actually engaged in the practice of medicine, are required not only by uniformed military personnel but also by many civilian employees, service families who are dependent upon them, industrial workers, etc.

But the ratio used in civilian life is based on the number of practicing physicians versus the entire population as shown by the census.

As Mr. Short says, the comparison is not fair.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—The ratio of losses in air combat today is about 10 Japanese planes to our one as compared to three to one back in the early days of Guadalcanal. VAdm. Marc A. Mitscher declared this week. He said that the "Hot" fighter of today becomes the "Sitting Duck" of tomorrow so fast that none of us can afford to feel complacent for long. "I can tell you that recent combat experience clearly indicates that we need a faster fighter," Admiral Mitscher said.

50 Years Ago—Should it prove true, as charged, that the prevalence of yellow fever in the Gulf States has been for weeks concealed from the public merely to prevent losses to the fruit trade and other private interests, the case will require vigorous action on the part of the Federal authorities.

90 Years Ago—Professor T. S. C. Lowe, the aeronaut, whose name is familiar to everyone who was at any time connected with the Army of the Potomac, has established himself in New York, and resumed the practice of his profession. He has got his balloons into operation, and proposes to exhibit to the public the process of inflation, to introduce us again to balloon ascensions, and, what is more attractive still, to give us the opportunity to accompany him in his journeys among the clouds.

Expropriate FA Song!

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

There seems to be a definite move on foot to junk the words but keep the tune of the Field Artillery's old "Caisson Song," stage a contest for new lyrics symbolic of the Army as a whole, and redesignate the new up-to-date product as an official Army march.

It is a noble and laudable effort to produce a marching song that the composite branches of the service will proudly sing and play as their song. The faithful caisson (bless its old hard seat and meagre hand-holds) has gone the way of the spinning wheel and the buggy whip. That should be no justification for the appropriation from the smaller Artillery its song by the larger Army just because it's a rollicking good one and the Army would like to have it. Montgomery's British Desert Rats captured in honorable combat the German Afrika Corps' haunting soldier song "Lili Marlene," but the Lord Jehovah reportedly visited punishment upon King Solomon for taking over unto himself Bath-Sheba, the eye-filling wife of one of the loyal subordinate captains in his Army.

To pull rank and take over the Artillerymen's song might flatter a few who will thereby be pleased to see that others in high places so appreciate their taste in music. Imitation, so the oldsters say, is the sincerest form of flattery. But what of the old ex-cannoneers who dream their dreams of past glory of the caissons as they go rolling along over hill, over dale, as they hit the dusty trail? Doesn't tradition mean anything anymore?

This action is on a par with the effort in the last century to change the fair name of Ar-kan-saw to Ar-kan-sas. You might just as well start a movement to modernize certain branch insignia because various portions have become outmoded. Throw out the medieval castles of the of the Military Police! Replace them with crossed picks and shovels. Throw out the antique horse pistols of the Military Police! Replace them with Colts, automatic, cal. 45. Throw out the ancient flint-lock muskets of the Infantry! Replace them with crossed M-1's or carbines, or even wait until it is decided just what the Queen of Battle's basic small arms weapons will finally be. Throw out the old Roman fasces and axe of the I. G.! They're too reminiscent of the late Mussolini's Fascist Italy anyway. Throw out the obsolete quill of the Judge Advocate General! Replace it with a fountain pen. And so on, ad nauseum. Just cast tradition to the winds.

Sic Transit Gloria Mundi!

Colonel, Transportation Corps.

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Reference the article about the 20th Infantry Regiment in your 30 July edition of THE JOURNAL.

I beg to differ with 1st Lt. Wesley G. Jones, Adjutant of the 20th, on one statement in his article which reads, "That occurrence, incidentally, added the Little Big Horn Battle Streamer to our Regimental Colors—the only Infantry Regiment with that battle honor."

As a former member of the 5th Infantry Regiment and as a former Color Bearer for that grand old organization I know that the 5th is also authorized the Little Big Horn Campaign Streamer.

Tenth Naval District Commandant Stresses Strategic Importance Of Caribbean

BY RADM. GROVER B. H. HALL, USN
Commandant, Tenth Naval District, Hq.
San Juan, Puerto Rico

OVER the waters of the Caribbean Sea move nearly half of the strategic materials imported to the United States. Daily, its ship lanes are dotted with freighters carrying tin, copper, bauxite, rubber, and raw ores from Central, and South America and the Orient via Panama Canal; large, fast tankers steam around the clock from the oil refineries in the Dutch West Indies.

In time of peace, the two-fold naval role in the Caribbean is to act as guardian of the sea lanes, and to support the many and varied training activities of the Atlantic fleet. In war, of course, the role becomes primarily that of offensive and defensive action to make positive that the sea lanes safely carry the strategic materials to the mills, foundries and factories in the United States.

OF PARAMOUNT IMPORTANCE, in either war or peace, is the continued safeguarding of the avenues of approach to the Panama Canal. Had either Germany or Japan been able to successfully blockade the Canal during World War II, years might have been added to the conflict.

The Navy, in recognizing the strategic importance of the Caribbean, has established and retains on a most austere basis limited peacetime means to carry out its responsibilities in protecting the Panama Canal and in keeping the ship lanes open.

A glance at any map of the Caribbean immediately brings to focus that this beautiful tropical span of water is semi-enclosed. On its Atlantic side are a chain of islands, beginning to the northwest with Cuba, and moving eastward in a gentle semi-circle to the northern coastal tip of South America. These islands form a natural protective barrier, and at the same time offer a militarily strategic position from which to protect the wealth of inter-American shipping.

The wisdom of the early planners in gradually establishing the Caribbean military bases since the Spanish American War, and their rapid expansion during the early part of World War II, has been thoroughly substantiated.

While U. S. Navy warships have operated in the Caribbean for more than a hundred years, it was not until July, 1941, that the Caribbean Sea Frontier was established. A year previously, the Tenth Naval District had been established.

Naval aircraft and surface ship anti-submarine patrols covered the Caribbean area from 1942 to VE Day, not only carrying out offensive operations against Axis submarines but also blockading Martinique where a portion of the Vichy French fleet was anchored.

THE CARIBBEAN SEA FRONTIER is commanded by a rear admiral who also has additional duty as Commandant of the Tenth Naval District. A small nucleus staff is provided him, which requires supplementing for other than routine operations in the area.

The Caribbean Sea Frontier, with headquarters in San Juan, Puerto Rico, is both a joint and a fleet command. Its commander reports to the Commander in Chief, Atlantic, and the Commander in Chief, Caribbean.

Embracing sea areas on both sides of the Panama Canal, the Commander, Caribbean Sea Frontier's principal subordinates are the Commandant, Fifteenth Naval District, with headquarters in Panama, and the Commandant, Tenth Naval District, who reports to the Chief of Naval Operations.

The Sea Frontier area is divided into sectors and subsectors for convenience in carrying out military responsibilities. The Commandant, Tenth Naval District, retains command of the Antilles sector and delegates the Commandant, Fifteenth Naval District, to command the Panama sector of the frontier.

NAVAL STATIONS AND BASES in the Caribbean include the Naval Station at San Juan, the Naval Station at Roosevelt Roads, Puerto Rico; the Naval Station, Trinidad, B. W. I., which is now in a partial maintenance status; the Naval Base, Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, which is the primary base for winter training and exercise of the Atlantic fleet; the Naval Station at Balboa, Canal Zone, and the Naval Air Station, Coco Solo, Canal Zone.

Additionally, there is a former submarine base in St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, which is used six months of the year as a training facility for underwater demolition teams and submarines. Also, in the event of future conflict, the lend-lease properties on Santa Lucia, Jamaica, Antigua, and at Georgetown, British Guiana, are available for military use.

Few people in the United States recognize the economy to be attained by protection from these sea bases which also project out into the Atlantic. With improved reconnaissance and patrol aircraft of today and improved communications and anti-submarine warfare measures, the value of semi-outlying bases on the flanks of threatening enemy submarines is becoming enhanced yearly. Much of the South African and United States-Mediterranean Sea commerce can come under surveillance from planes in the Antilles.

In particular, the stations in Puerto Rico not only furnish a centrally located headquarters for the Commander, Caribbean Sea Frontier on the Antilles islands barrier, but offer valuable sites for Marine and Naval fleet exercises during months of bad weather off the East Coast.

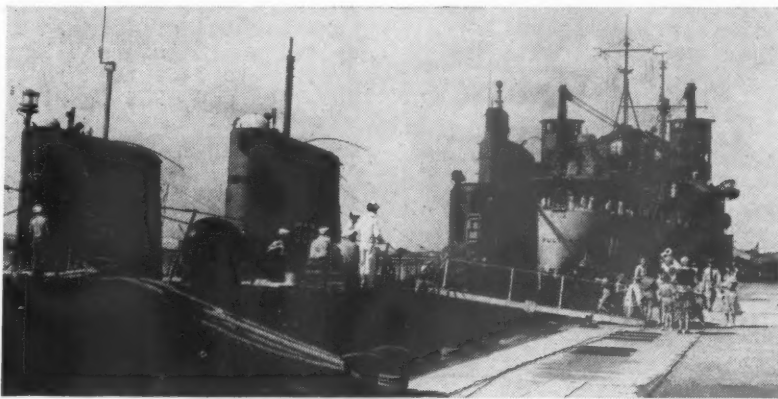

The location of the headquarters in Puerto Rico is in general a great morale asset to the Naval and Marine families who are privileged to live on this semitropical island. The climate is splendid, and there are many compensations such as home life, with ready travel to the States if necessary, and numerous recreational facilities.

CORDIAL RELATIONS WITH THE LOCAL COMMONWEALTH GOVERNMENT are enjoyed. The renowned hospitality of the Puerto Rican people provides an atmosphere which the Navy, and its sister services, find most pleasant, both personally and officially.

Coupled with Guantanamo Bay, the ready use of these definitely strategic areas for peacetime basic training is an economy which ordinarily is not existent in many of our overseas bases and stations. The naval stations in Puerto Rico furnish fleet and shore communications, docking and repair ships, air facilities, oil and gasoline storage, search and rescue and hurricane warning provisions among other services.

During winter maneuvers, nearly every bluejacket and Marine in the Atlantic fleet has an opportunity to visit the Caribbean and use the facilities which we are maintaining at very low cost. A definite contribution toward the goodwill ambassadorship of the United States is made by these service personnel who visit the islands of the Caribbean.

It is also equally important to recognize the necessity for retention and maintenance of our forward stations in the Caribbean, from which operations can be conducted to assure the lifeline flow to our industries in peace or war.

PURPOSE OF THE NAVY IN THE CARIBBEAN is brought home as a group of Puerto Rican women and children wait to board the submarines tied up in San Juan for an "open house" visit. The Commandant of the Tenth Naval District maintains a continuing flow of information to the peoples of the Caribbean explaining the necessity and usefulness for maintaining a strong Naval organization in the southern bulwark of America's defense.

Problems of New Base Near Summer Resort Face First CO of Myrtle Beach AFB

Col. Robert G. Emmens, USAF, is in the unusual situation of having reported as commanding officer of a base which is not yet completed and which has only three or four personnel assigned, but yet has many problems and heavy responsibilities before it can become operative.

Previously serving as General O. P. Weyland's Deputy Chief of Staff for Intelligence at Tactical Air Force headquarters, Langley AFB, Va., Colonel Emmens was ordered to command the as-yet non-existent air force base at Myrtle Beach, S. C.

MYRTLE BEACH is one of a number of new bases being established by TAC. Others include Bunker Hill AFB, Ind., Seymour-Johnson AFB, N. C., and Blytheville AFB, Ark.

Myrtle's distinction is that it is being set up in the midst of a large, prosperous and growing resort community. And therein lays the bulk of Colonel Emmens' problems.

First off is the problem of housing. The Base is to be a modern jet fighter-bomber base with 10,000-foot runways. It will be ready for occupancy in about a year. But as yet there are no provisions for quarters. Subsequent plans may include money for on-base quarters, but it is clear that when the first units begin to arrive the personnel must live on the community.

COLONEL EMMENS looks upon that as his number one consideration. He has worked with the local interests to get housing projects underway, with particular concern in those which will offer housing opportunities for junior commissioned and non-commissioned officers' families.

Realizing that in a Summer resort such as Myrtle Beach rents are at their peak in the Spring and Summer, Colonel Emmens is formulating his plans so that the first increments of his operational command will begin to arrive at the base in the Fall of 1956. In that way they will not only get the benefit of the lower rentals for Fall and Winter, but they will also be in a position to negotiate for more reasonable year-round rentals.

On the long-pull basis, Colonel Emmens has worked with the local community to set up a housing committee which will designate quarters which can be rented on a year around basis and also encourage the building of apartments and units suitable for Service occupancy at reasonable rental rates.

THE HOUSING SITUATION, like the other problems facing the new CO, is dependent for successful solution on community relations. On that score Colonel Emmens has been doing a yeoman job. Despite the fact that he has been on leave during most of the short time he has been at Myrtle Beach he has already responded to some 10 to 12 invitations to make talks before local civic groups.

In these talks Colonel Emmens has taken the opportunity to stress the mutual advantages of military-civilian cooperation. The base will bring to Myrtle Beach a monthly payroll of between one-half and three-quarters of a million dollars.

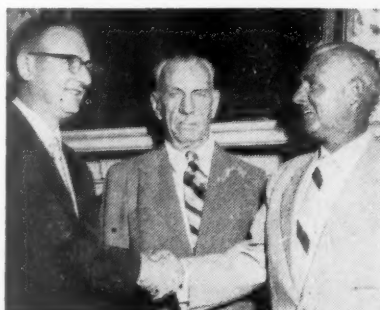

He has offered, and the community has joined is heartily, a plan for joint cooperation in many phases. For example, there already is underway a plan for cooperation in fire protection. The Air Base will help the community in its fire problems and in turn the community will stand ready to use its facilities to help the base should it need it.

THE NOISE PROBLEM of a jet base is another which has taken the attention of Colonel Emmens. To a resort community such as Myrtle Beach the continual roar of jet aircraft taking off and landing could become a major irritation. Colonel Emmens is preparing for this in two ways. First, he is planning for take-offs and landing in patterns which will bring the aircraft over the ocean for take offs and from deep inland positions for landings, thus avoiding low level approaches over the beaches or the residential colonies. At the same time, he is taking advantage of his advance position as CO to discuss with community leaders the problems of jet flight, explaining what he is doing to avoid undue annoyance, and what the community, by its cooperation and forbearance, can contribute to the protection of the nation as a whole.

Long before the base is operative Colonel Emmens will have established an honest and thorough understanding with Huston Miller, of Briarcliffe, joined in the welcome.

MEMO For Journal Readers

NO LETDOWN IN THE NEXT BUDGET is contemplated as a result of the recent meeting at the summit. At a news conference this week, Defense Secretary Wilson reiterated that the mission of his department is to maintain a defense establishment geared for "a long pull." The cordiality of the Russians does not call for a letdown of our defenses, the Secretary stated. While he believes that much good will come from the top-level meeting, he emphasized that wishful thinking will not cause a change in the present defense program.

EXPLAINING THE NAVY'S REASONS for not granting a commission to Kings Point graduate Eugene W. Landy, Navy Secretary Thomas said the Navy isn't obligated to take merchant marine graduates into the Naval Reserve or to call them to active duty. But a contrary view had been voiced a few weeks earlier by Assistant Navy Secretary Albert Pratt. Merchant Marine Midshipmen, in order to be deferred from the draft, must sign an agreement to serve on active duty for two years after graduation. Secretary Pratt told the Senate Armed Services Committee, "Experience has shown that this obligation on the part of the individual is interpreted by the Congress to be an obligation on the service, as well, to provide an opportunity to perform such active duty."

PRESS REACTION to the Navy's seemingly last minute decision to deny a commission to Mid. Eugene W. Landy, second ranking graduate of the Merchant Marine Academy, apparently on the grounds that he associated with his mother (an admitted former communist party member) has been almost universally bad. Navy Secretary Thomas, intimates say, wants to come up with either ample justification, or if that is not possible, outright repudiation.

A FORTHCOMING REPORT of the House Armed Services Committee will challenge charges of the now-defunct Hoover Commission on waste in the Armed Services. The Committee's investigating group, headed by Rep. F. Edward Hebert (D-La.), found that "many cases of waste" detailed by the Commission had been uncovered by the Investigations Subcommittee as far back as five years ago.

A DIFFICULT JOB is in store for members of the House Armed Services Committee during the next session of the 84th Congress if they attempt to beat the record they established during the first session. The group held 76 full Committee meetings, compared with a total of 97 during both sessions of the 83d Congress.

AIR FORCE POLICE on duty with FEAF will be given an opportunity to take Judo training at the famed Kokokan Institute in Tokyo. It's a four-week's course. In October, a FEAF-wide Judo tournament will be held.

DESIGNATION OF THE NAVY'S fifth 60,000-ton carrier is still at sea. Representative Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) wants her to be named the USS Kitty Hawk. In fact the House passed a bill specifying that name. But Navy Sec'y Thomas is holding fast for the name USS Independence. If the redoubtable Armed Services Committee Chairman wishes to make a fight of it, the Navy could find itself in rough waters.

AIR FORCE QUALITY EMPHASIS is pointed up with the decision to reduce monthly procurement of non-prior service airmen from July through December from 12,120 to 10,145. This means that barring a new spurt in the re-up rate, the Air Force will end the current fiscal year thousands of men below its 975,000 budget goal. Officials say that by cutting the quota, it will be possible to reduce the input of "marginal learners."

BIRTHS AT BARKSDALE AFB, La., will be rationed starting 1 Oct. Newly disclosed in The Journal's roundup of curtailed family medical care is the order that only 90 births per month will be permitted at Barksdale. Patients will be accepted on a "first come, first served" basis. The action was required because "of serious overcrowding of available facilities."

AIR FORCE REENLISTEES are going in big for a six-year contract, as a result of the reenlistment bonus law, now just a year old. Prior to its passage, about 6 out of 10 reenlisting airmen signed up for six-year tours; this has now jumped to 8 out of 10.

CAMPUS INTEREST in flying training has soared since the decision in 1953 to restrict AF ROTC training in large part to those who were interested in becoming rated officers. The 1952 ROTC classes showed a 10% interest in flying; the next year it went up to 24%, then to 55%. Programmed objectives for 1955 and 1956 is 81%.

MILITARY SERVICES EDUCATION system for their officers is held up as a shining example by the State Department Committee studying Foreign Service. The Foreign Service could use schools like the military war colleges, staff colleges, etc. The committee also plugs for a foreign service training program along the lines of the naval ROTC system by which students' education is subsidized. Although few have elected to stay in the regular navy they do build up the reserve. The Foreign Service Committee suggests that its ROTC students be obligated for six years of duty.

THE HOOVER COMMITTEE, writes the New York Times military editor, Hanson W. Baldwin, "approached the problem of military policy and organization primarily from dollar economy." He adds, "the tenor of too many reports have the effect of under-emphasizing the reason for the existence of the armed services—combat effectiveness." Well said Mr. Baldwin.

✓ THE DISPARITY IN PAY between Reserves ($50 a month) and National Guard ($78 a month), as provided in the new bill signed this week by the President poses a real problem. It will hamper the Reserve units and turn many toward the National Guard which, according to the President, will suffer from the lack of the guarantees of prior training afforded the reserves. Even with the extra pay, Gen. Eisenhower doubts that the Guard can attain the desired strength.

OPPOSITION voiced by Rep. Paul J. Kilday (D-Tex) may kill legislation in the next session of Congress to give military policemen the same protection against bodily attack as is granted to Federal peace officers. A senior member of the House Armed Services Committee, Congressman Kilday's views are respected and he has labelled the proposal "a mischiefmaker." Military men have no duties as peace officers, he contends.

Sounds like a big saving on standard automobile insurance . . . and it is.

Almost six million dollars were paid in dividends last year to USAA members on 282,843 policies. During its 33 years over 75 million dollars have been paid out in claims and returned in savings on policies.

Last year USAA automobile policyholders located in the States saved 44% of the standard manual premiums.

USAA was organized in 1922 by Army officers as a non-profit organization to make available automobile insurance at cost. The company has always been managed by active and retired officers of the Armed Forces.

USAA dividends are liberal because losses are kept down. Membership is open to active and retired commissioned and warrant officers of the U.S. Armed Forces . . . a preferred risk group.

USAA dividends are liberal because operating costs are kept down. Selling is done by mail. There are no agents' commissions to pay, or branch office overhead to meet.

Each year more and more Armed Forces officers turn to USAA for automobile and household effects insurance. Nearly 25% more policies were in force in 1954 than in the previous year.

USAA has enjoyed a healthy growth since it was established. Today it is the oldest, largest and strongest non-profit organization serving officers of the U.S. Armed Forces with automobile insurance.

USAA operates in the United States, its possessions and territories; Canada, Cuba and the Canal Zone; Japan, the Philippines, and certain U.S. military bases in the Pacific, as well as in Western Continental Europe. Claims are settled promptly even in the most out-of-the way places.

When its time to insure . . . insure with confidence . . . give yourself the best, and save, too. Insure with USAA!

USAA policies are sold by mail. For information on how USAA can serve you, fill in and mail coupon. No matter whether you're stateside, overseas or on orders, USAA is as close as your nearest mailbox, telephone or telegraph office. Your USAA insurance becomes effective as of postmarked time of application, unless a later date is specified.

Bendix Electronic Devices of vital tasks for every

Necessity was surely the mother of electronics. Broadly speaking, man's progress in science and mechanics was rapidly outstripping his physical and mental ability to employ his developments efficiently, and so he harnessed the electron and made it do thousands of both menial and extremely vital tasks for him—ranging from calling foul-line errors on bowlers to reporting what goes on in a guided missile in flight.

In the latter case, for example, within the span of a two-minute flight period at speeds of thousands of miles per hour, Bendix electronic telemetering equipment transmits simultaneously over one hundred different categories of information back to the ground. This information would be valueless, of course, if Bendix had not also developed high-speed electronic receiving and recording equipment, as well as digital and analogue computers to quickly catalog this fund of knowledge which otherwise might involve months of labor by expert mathematicians.

Relatively speaking, electronics is in its infancy. Yet every hour every day it performs new jobs more efficiently. And the future looks particularly bright because of its broad, almost universal, application.

We cannot possibly describe in this small space the great variety of Bendix electronic devices. Listed at the right are some of the electronic products we have developed and manufacture for the aviation, automotive, railroad, marine, communications, television and other

Mrs. Arnold, Wife of CG, USFA, Honored By Church for Charity Work in Austria

A high decoration of the Roman Catholic Church was presented to Mrs. William H. Arnold, wife of the Commanding General of U. S. Forces in Austria recently in a centuries old ceremonial in Salzburg.

Mrs. Arnold was made a Lady of the Holy Sepulchre, Grand Cross. She became the second woman ever to be made a member of the order in Austria, and the only one to receive the highest degree. The other woman so honored in Austria is Mrs. Auguste Trappe who now lives in Stowe, Vt. Only 15 Americans have received this highest degree of the order and of this number five were women.

The honor, proposed by The Most Rev. Dr. Andreas Rohrer, Archbishop of Salzburg and prior of the Austrian chapter was approved by Pope Pius XII and was given in recognition of Mrs. Arnold's public and private charitable activities in Austria. This was the first time such an award has ever been given in an occupied country to a member of the occupation.

The decoration was presented in the presence of other Knights of the Holy Sepulchre and of the Land Governor of Land Salzburg, of ranking officers of USFA, members of the Salzburg Women's Club, and the USFA Sodality, and members of the old nobility of Austria.

Clad in a white cloak with the Red Cross of the Crusades, 50-year-old Mrs. Arnold was led to the altar of Holy Trinity Church by two knights of the order. There she was knighted and presented the Grand Cross of the order by Archbishop Rohrer in a ceremony dating from the time of the crusades when the order was founded.

Mrs. Arnold had been awarded the "Pro Ecclesia et Pontifice" decoration by the Pope in January 1953 while she was with her husband in Turkey where Lt. Gen. William H. Arnold was chief of the Joint Military Mission for Aid to Turkey at Ankara. She was awarded this honor for her charitable activities there. This award was presented by the Papal Delegate to Turkey.

He began his career as an enlisted man in the Aviation Section of the Army Signal Corps in 1917 and was commissioned the following year.

Gen. Hull Gets "Hull" Coins On Retirement

Tokyo—Two rare coins, the Hull penny and Hull half-penny dated 1812, were presented to General John E. Hull, U. S. Army, upon his retirement as Commander-in-Chief of the United Nations Far East Command. They were given him by Col. Montgomery C. Jackson, Transportation Corps, Okinawa, one of whose hobbies is the collecting of old and unusual coins.

In presenting these two pieces to General Hull, it was explained that they were minted for actual use in the City of Hull in Yorkshire, England, in 1812 by a local private concern, the Picard Lead Works. During this period of the Napoleonic Wars in Europe, England's "war effort" consumed most of the metal normally used in the striking of pennies and half-pennies. Priority was given to cannon, muskets, naval anchors, and other snags of war. The resultant shortage of small change throughout the country was partially alleviated by the issuance of a token coinage, mostly half penny size, struck and redeemed by various enterprising business firms. Hundreds of varieties appeared, just as in the latter years of our own Civil War period. With Napoleon's defeat at Waterloo and the resulting reappearance of the government backed coppers these necessity coins or tokens disappeared from circulation.

General Hull in acknowledgement wrote Colonel Jackson that he was delighted with the gift and was carrying them around in his pocket. After all, not many people can boast of their own personalized coins.

In addition, planes will receive fuselage reinforcing, auxiliary power unit and instrument power circuit improvements, and installation of an elevator gust-lock emergency valve.

More F-102s & TF-102s Ordered From Convair

A multimillion-dollar production contract for Convair F-102A jet interceptors and TF-102A combat proficiency trainers has been awarded to Convair Division of General Dynamics Corporation by the Air Force. It has been announced by General Joseph T. McNarney, USAF-Ret., Convair president.

The order is the third placed with Convair for the supersonic delta wing F-102A and the second involving TF-102A trainers. The all-weather day-or-night interceptors are being produced at Convair's San Diego Plant II for use by the Air Defense Command.

Sections of the TF-102As will be fabricated at Convair's Fort Worth Division and shipped to the San Diego Division for final assembly. The TF-102A is the two-place trainer version of the F-102A interceptor.

Deliveries of F-102A production models to the Air Force have already begun at Palmdale, Calif., where Convair is building new facilities for F-102A field operations.

Lear 6-Mo. Shipments Up; Backlog Increases

Shipments of $29,023,044 for the half year ended 30 June were $1¼ million more than the first half of 1954; setting an all time high for a six months' period. Richard M. Mock, president of Lear, Inc., Santa Monica, Calif., states in the company's semi-annual report. Backlog of orders had increased to $46 million, up $8 million since the first of the year. Net worth increased by $565,114 to $8,718,469 and working capital was up $412,869 to $6,024,192.

Based on unaudited interim figures, earnings before taxes were $1,826,366 and after taxes $876,366, or 39¢ a share on 2,247,941 shares of common. While this compares with 66¢ a share on 2,095,490 shares for the like period of 1954, Mr. Mock stated present indications are that an upward profit trend which began in the second quarter will continue for the balance of the year. Net profit for the last half of 1955 is expected to be higher than for the first half, a reversal of the situation in 1954 when first half profits were the higher.

"The volume of shipments and new orders is indicative of the maturing results of the company's substantial investment in increased engineering, re-design, re-tooling, new products and sales support. This investment for the future had the temporary effect of decreasing the net profit in the latter months of 1954 and early 1955," Mr. Mock stated.

Dividends, each at the rate of 15¢ per common share, were paid on 2 Jan. and 2 Aug. 1955. All preferred stock has been converted or called for redemption.

First Independent Jet Engine Overhaul Contract Starts Output On Schedule

Launching of production in the first jet engine overhaul program ever attempted outside the facilities of the military or those of engine manufacturers was announced on "deadline time" by Southwest Airmotive Company, Love Field, Dallas, Tex. Simultaneously, the company revealed the on-schedule July delivery to the Air Force of its initial monthly quota of completed Allison J33-A35 turbo jet powerplants.

The successful running of Southwest Airmotive's first production engine, Saturday, 23 July, came 150 days after the company's receipt of its definitive USAF contract for the overhaul of more than 1,200 J33s for approximately $3,000,000. Meeting of the July quota came but a week later.

Other completed overhauls promptly followed No. 1 through the firm's main plant at Love Field and the testing installation 13 miles distant at Fort Worth's Amon Carter Field. The production line is gaining momentum daily, spokesmen said.

Testing of the first engine was observed by a large group of USAF technicians and inspectors, as well as by company engineers and officials. Interest in the company's progress as a jet overhaul trail-blazer has been widespread throughout the aviation industry.

Jet teardown, cleaning, inspection, rework, and final assembly departments were established in Southwest Airmotive's existing 75,000 sq. ft. engine facility near Love Field's north corner. A 15,000 sq. ft. addition—started 1 May and completed 1 July in what Bock Construction Co. of Dallas says was "record time"—houses the compressor spin pit and balancing department, and accessory overhaul and test. Rooms for the latter are

Cites Insurance Growth

Growth of the United Services Life Insurance Company was cited by Lloyd M. Bauman, Executive Vice President, during an address at the Company's Annual Agency Convention at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. He stated that in the 9½-year period ended 31 July 1955, the Company's insurance in force increased from $25 million to more than $164 million.

At the end of 1945, he said, the total assets of the company were less than $2.3 million, but have now increased to almost $16 million. During the same period, capital and surplus rose from $226,000 to $1,638,000.

pressurized and explosion-proof. For equipment cooling purposes, the accessory department is provided with 80 tons of air-conditioning.

After completion of jet overhauls at Love Field, engines are moved by truck to a two-cell testing facility at Amon Carter Field. This 10,000 sq. ft. building was started 1 April and finished 5 July, complete with underground fuel tanks, an outlying storage can repair shop, loading aprons, and a hard-surfaced, half-mile road linking it with the main highway.

Louis Beimer is superintendent of SAC's Love Field shop, with James Wall in charge of jet operations there. To head up the test unit, Southwest employed James E. Mays, for seven years a jet engine specialist with the Oklahoma City Air Materiel Area where for a long period he was foreman of jet overhaul. Mays also advised KLM in the launching of its jet engine overhaul operations, on loan from the USAF to the Military Assistance Advisory Group of NATO.

Much of the engineering detail was directed by George Kelley, the company's plant facilities engineer, in cooperation with the Air Force and with technicians representing the manufacturers of engine components and overhaul tooling. Buildings were designed by Dallas Architects Goodwin & Cavitt, with Bock Construction erecting them at both locations.

Overall supervision of the jet program has been the responsibility of James E. Lockart, Jr., vice president in charge of Southwest Airmotive service. The company's three principal owners and officers are Harlan Ray, president, and Winston Castleberry and George W. Jalonick, III, executive vice presidents.

U. S. COAST GUARD

Secretary of The Treasury—George M. Humphrey
Commandant—Vice Admiral Alfred C. Richmond

PERMANENT commanders and temporary captains will be interested to learn that Headquarters is preparing instructions which will eliminate the necessity of their having to take certain correspondence courses.

Personnel Circular No. 17-53, which is now being revised and which soon should be ready for distribution, will impart the news that "Foundations of National Power" will be changed from a correspondence course to a reading course. This will mean that commanders and captains no longer will have to submit their problems for correction prior to being made permanent.

Coast Guard officers also will learn that "Strategy and Tactics" will be deleted from the list of required courses.

In place of the "Strategy and Tactics" course, a selection of one book from each of the following groups on the subject of Management and Administration will constitute a reading course:

Group One

Administrative Behavior by H. A. Simon.
Administration by Albert Lepawsky.
Dynamic Administration (collected papers of Mary Parker Follet), edited by Metcalf and Urwick.

Group Two

The Principles of Organization by James D. Mooney.
The Engineering of Organization and Management by R. T. Livingston.
Middle Management by Mary Cushing Howard Niles.
Organization—A Formation of Principles by Alvin Brown.

These reading materials will be furnished to District Commanders; the Superintendent of the Academy; and Commanding Officers of the Yard, Groton Training Station, and Cape May Receiving Center, to be issued to officers on a loan and return basis.

Headquarters states that officers should not apply for the material until after 15 Aug. A first, second and third choice should be given.

C-130 Makes 5-hr. Swing To Donaldson, Sewart

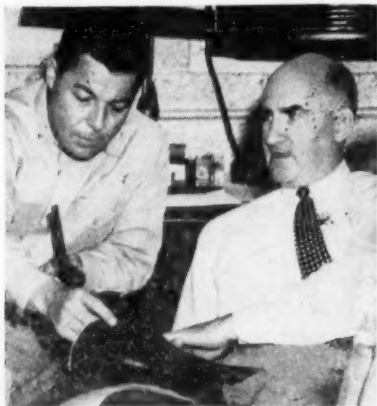

The Lockheed C-130 Hercules has made "an excellent five-hour cruise flight," Lockheed Aircraft Corporation's Georgia Division at Marietta announced 'this week.

Besides setting a flight record for the new-type airplane, the "routine training flight" gave the longest workout in the air thus far of the Hercules' four T56 Allison gas turbine engines which deliver 3,750 h.p. each.

Leo J. Sullivan, Lockheed test pilot, flew as instructor for Maj. Wendell L. Stultz, chief U. S. Air Force acceptance pilot at Marietta, who was at the controls.

The C-130 flew from Dobbins AFB, Marietta, Ga., to Donaldson AFB, Greenville, S. C. Here the transport did low-level fly-bys so that airmen of Headquarters, Eighteenth Air Force—which will receive the first operational C-130s—could get a close-up look at the nation's newest aircraft vehicle in flight. From there, the turboprop cruised to Sewart AFB, Smyrna, Tenn., and did fly-bys for the benefit of the 314th Troop Carrier Wing (Medium) which is one of the Eighteenth Air Force units scheduled to receive early C-130 production airplanes.

Others in the crew included Sgt. D. E. Hubler, USAF flight engineer; A. P. (Bob) Brennan, flight engineer; Vern Peterson, pilot, and Bill Flowers, flight engineer, all of Lockheed.

Services Compare Data On Anti-Mine Shoes

Four scientists from the Army Quartermaster Research and Development laboratory at Natick, Mass., have been conferring with the Personnel Protection staff of the Naval Medical Field Research laboratory at Camp Lejeune, N. C. here.

The visit marked the third conference between the two laboratories within the past 14 months. Both are experimenting with models of armored footwear designed to protect the lower limbs and feet against mine explosions.

Purpose of the meetings, according to Dr. S. J. Kennedy, Director of the Army Quartermaster Textile, Clothing and Footwear research, is "to compare facts and information."

With Dr. Kennedy were the Army Quartermaster's jungle warfare expert, Robert L. Woodbury, directors of operations and progression; R. A. Walkey, shoe expert, and M. I. Landsburgh, body army expert.

Lt. Col. Stanley D. Low, USMC, Development Branch, G-4, Headquarters, Marine Corps, met the group on its arrival and took part in the conference and demonstrations.

The Army group received a briefing from Comdr. Frederick L. Lewis, director of the Body Armor and Wound Ballistics department of the Navy Medical Field Research Laboratory, credited with the development of the Marine Corps armored vest used in Korea.

After the briefing the group witnessed a series of test demonstrations that involved setting off anti-personnel mines under examples of the Army's mine-resistant thermal boot with special sole construction.

Dr. Kennedy said he was "very favorably impressed with the lab's unusual test methods" designed to test armored footwear.

Robins' New Dep. BC

New Deputy Base Commander at Robins AFB, Ga., is Lt. Col. Sebastian J. Mangimelli, who formerly commanded the Midland Air Depot, England.

MAJOR BENJAMIN CURTIS, USA, holds the free pistol he used to win the International Slow Fire Match at the Southeastern Regional Pistol Matches at Jacksonville, Fla. Major Curtis scored 546 out of a possible 600 in the special match where any type of .22 caliber pistol may be used. The Army swept both individual and team shooting honors from approximately 200 military and civilian marksmen in the annual event.

Boosts Water-Based Planes

The "significant place" of water-based aircraft in the overall transport picture was outlined this week by Chauncey Bell of the Glenn L. Martin Co.

In a paper presented at the Seattle Meeting of the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences, the Martin representative warned that the U.S. must "not wait until too late" to take advantage of developments in the water-based aircraft field.

These planes, he said, "have come of age. They represent a fast, versatile and economical mode of transportation and deserve a prominent place in our military and civil transport picture."

Compared with land-based planes, Mr. Bell said, water-based craft have greater load-carrying capacity, better growth potential, better route flexibility, independence from fixed facilities with their tremendous costs and their high degree of vulnerability and of economy through size.

"Large water-based turbojet aircraft," he declared, "would seem to approach more closely than any other type, an ideal against which to evaluate the air transport of tomorrow."

Problems Of New Base Near Resort Face First CO Of Myrtle Beach AFB, S. C.

the local residents. Already he is well and favorably known by Mayor Ernest Williams and other officials who have worked hand-in-glove with the Air Force in setting up the base there. In fact, these leaders have been most cooperative in acquiring the land necessary for the base and deeding it to the Air Force.

FIRE PROTECTION is only one phase of an over-all mutual assistance program which Colonel Emmens is in the process of working out with the local community. Other phases will include cooperative policing, housing committees, local planning and other areas of concern to the residents of both the civilian and military communities. Through these cooperative activities there is every evidence that by the time the operational units with their many hundreds of families arrive at Myrtle Beach some time in the Fall of 1956 there will have been established an entente that will contribute to the efficiency and smooth operation of a new TAC base while at the same time constituting a welcome addition to an already prosperous and orderly community.

Colonel Emmens has established a temporary home with his wife and three children, 13, 10 and 8 years of age, and by Fall hopes to be set in a permanent residence.

Colonel Emmens has reported at his new post with a brilliant and interesting background that has gained immediate respect. A graduate of the University of Oregon, he early took an interest in aviation so that 19 years ago he signed up with the Air Corps for flight training at "West Point of the Air"—Randolph and Kelly Fields, Tex. Already a seasoned pilot when war overtook the United States, he was selected as one of the elite to accompany General James Doolittle for the surprise attack on Tokyo. His plane was the one which carried on from the bomb-drop on Tokyo to fly into Russian territory. There the officers and members of the crew were taken under the protective wing of the Soviets for 18 months. It was from this experience that he wrote his widely read book "Guests of the Kremlin" which was published by the Macmillan company.

OPERATIONAL UNITS at Myrtle AFB will be a part of the 9th Air Force, a unit of TAC commanded by Maj. Gen. P. W. Timberlake, USAF, with headquarters at Shaw AFB, only 80 miles from Myrtle Beach.

Construction of Myrtle Beach AFB is being handled by the Army Engineers under the direction of the Charlotte Engineer District, Lt. Col. Arthur H. Baiden, jr., CE, USA, is directly in charge of the project. Thus far the project has been completely on schedule. It is estimated that it is now 70 per cent finished, with total completion scheduled for sometime next year. Most of the work is being done on the North-South runway, extending and widening it, with the East-West runway being prepared as an auxiliary.

Already using the limited facilities is the 728th Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron, under command of Maj. David D. Klapper, USAF. When the new base is completed this AC & W unit will become a tenant.

gave no hint as to what would be the result if a Congressional Committee were to disapprove of the planned shutdown of activities "which can be performed on an economically sound basis by private enterprise, without danger to the national security," according to the official release.

Nor did the Secretary explain why the DoD decided to notify Congress of its action in light of the fact that the President declared he would treat the disputed Section as invalid. He said that the "real problem" would confront the DoD if one of the Committees were to say "You can't do that."

Noting that the discontinuance of such Government-operated plants is consistent with Hoover Commission reports, Secretary Wilson stated that the list is likely to be expanded.

Here's a list of the facilities slated for shut-down, grouped by type:

Coffee Roasting—Atlanta General Depot, Ga.; Auburn General Depot, Wash.; Naval Supply Center, Oakland, Calif.; and Naval Supply Activity, N. Y.

Ropewalk—Naval Shipyard, Boston, Mass.

Paint Manufacturing—Mare Island, Calif.; and Naval Shipyard, Norfolk, Va.

Bakery—Camp Kilmer, N. J.

Dry Cleaning Plant—Ft. Benning, Ga.

Cobbler Shops—Gary AFB, Texas; Chanute AFB, Ill.; Lowery AFB, Colo.; McChord AFB, Wash.; and F. E. Warren AFB, Wyo.

PRESIDENT OKs ALASKAN ALLOWANCES

The President has signed HR 3560, now Public Law 197, validating station per diem allowances for military personnel stationed in Alaska during 1949-'50.

The new law provides that all payments of station per diem allowances made to commissioned officers and warrant officers of the Army, Navy and Air Force permanently stationed at Ft. Richardson, Alaska, or Elmendorf AFB, Alaska, after 31 Jan. 1949 and before 13 Oct. 1950, for service at Ft. Richardson or Elmendorf, are validated to the extent that those station per diem allowances were paid, because the Services ruled that no Government mess was available.

Any commissioned officer or warrant officer who has made a repayment to the U.S. of the amount so paid to him as station per diem allowances is entitled to a refund of the entire amount.
